RISK MANAGEMENT

THE ISSUE

Aviation operations can have a diverse risk profile, ranging from the possibility of a serious aircraft accident to business interruption and possible reputational damage. We understand the varied challenges faced by the aviation industry and we recognise that effective risk transfer, mitigation, and planning are fundamental to your success. Areas of risk that need to be protected include:

STRATEGIC RISK

The risk of not meeting strategic objectives, e.g. loss of market position due to competition.

OPERATIONAL RISK

The risks arising from failure in operational processes, e.g. failure of the workforce or suppliers to comply with operational procedures and protocols.

FINANCIAL RISK

The risk of financial loss e.g. reduced passenger numbers, currency, and commodity risks.

HAZARD RISK

The risk of natural and man-made perils, e.g. extreme weather leading to operational restrictions and supply chain failure.

OUR SOLUTION

Marsh Risk Consulting (MRC) has a dedicated aviation risk management team, which can help reduce your reliance on insurance, by helping you to have in place adequate risk management processes. They can also help you to analyse the operational, financial, and managerial risks in your balance sheet.
